

Continued from page 7

Card shuffle

Say "sit here" with style

Bored with standard paper tents for reception-table name cards, we asked local designer Kristin Adolfson to cook up some more unexpected ideas. Adolfson, who owns Still Point Press—a Downtown studio that provides vintage letterpress, handmade books and Web design—rose to the occasion with these three cuties: a small potted plant that could double as a guest favor, a fancy metal hinge, and a tiny handmade paper booklet (complete with mini pen) in which guests could write notes to the newlyweds. Find Adolfson at www.still-point-press.com—or make it yourself.

—Erika Housare

